

EMPTY TIN CANS NEEDED TO MAKE WARM CANDLES FOR UKRAINE

A local wax manufacturer is making 'warm candles' to send to people in Ukraine. These are a type of candle that generate as much heat as light, so that they can be used for boiling water, heating up food or to keep warm. With daytime temperatures hovering around zero, even colder at night and a constant threat to energy supplies, the next few months are going to be very hard.

Warm candles are made of tin cans, wax and a cardboard wick. They have cardboard and all the wax that's needed, but they need tin cans.

Please save your tin cans. Most sizes and shapes work, but please make sure they are clean, paper free and don't have any sharp or jagged edges protruding. Sharp edges on the inside of the can from opening them is fine.
